SUMMARY OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK

CANADIAN

The price of wheat at the beginning of the week was 114 1/2 c.p.r. and was standing at 144 1/2.

In answer to Mr. Mackenzie King's statement that he did not intend to run for election in Canada that an election should be held after four sessions of parliament, and in answer to the government to face an appeal to the people. No definite announcement, however, has yet been made.

A new line of train was tried on the C.N.R. line at Peterboro in Ontario in which the motive power was an electric generator. The train of two coaches obtained a speed of 50 miles an hour. Its fuel consumption was two cents per mile against 20 to 25 cents the cost of a steam train.

The situation in the Drumheller coal mines remains quiet though only a limited number of mines are working, with small gangs of men. The police are still keeping a watchful eye on the situation. The handling of this crisis in the excellent illustration of effective preparation beforehand. The police had a supply of tear bombs and machine gun all ready to use.

It appears that the Ontario liquor law providing for the sale of 44 per cent beer is not regarded as a success by any party, and an amendment before long is probable.

The Yukon territory has voted for the sale of beer by a considerable majority.

The city of Vancouver will issue notices throughout the prairie provinces and B.C. that men coming into the city for the winter will only receive the usual relief work pay. Only those who have been in the city for six months continuously will get this pay in the coming winter.

The Canadian Bar Association meeting in Winnipeg took place on the 29th of the increase of crime throughout Canada. Among its recommendations was one for the use of the word "youthful offender" instead of "juvenile delinquent."

Medicine Hat provincial election vote will take place on September 29. It has been arranged between the United States and Canada that Canadian returning from abroad in New York will not have to pass through Ellis Island but will receive their landing authority from the officials on board the ships before reaching New York. This will be a great convenience to Canadian in view of the notorious hardships and unpleasantness of Ellis Island.

Further serious fires have taken place in Montreal.

It is announced that the past year has been the best in the history of the Canadian National Railway system so far as net profits are concerned. This result, in view of the prevailing, is considered to be a further indication of the improvement of the system under Sir Henry Thornton's management.

Baker and Sowah, who were condemned to execution for the murder of Captain Gillis of the running ship schooner B.C. off the B.C. coast, have been granted a reprieve until November 1st to allow of the hearing of their appeal.

The east-bound train of the Bank of Commerce at Vancouver was stopped by a robber who forced the manager and staff into the vault and was preparing to rob the bank when the manager dashed out of the vault and shut the robber in, where he was duly captured by the police.

Alberta and Ontario are to co-operate in order to try to arrange with the C.N.R. for further shipments of Alberta coal at the special rate to Ontario. The U.S. coal strike makes this of more importance than ever.

Prairie scale freight rates are to be introduced by the C.P.R. on the Pacific Railway from September 18. Grain and flour are to have Crow's Nest agreement rates and passenger fares are also to be reduced.

Threshing is general in Southern Alberta. Crop yields are fair to good but grades are low.

Robberies by gangs of men took place in nine different towns of Manitoba last week.

BRITISH AND IMPERIAL

Very serious news comes from Ireland in the form of an anticipation of the decision of the boundary commission set up to determine the boundary between Northern Ireland and the Free State. According to this anticipation considerable sections of Northern Ireland's territory, including the town of Newry, are to be awarded to the Free State. If this is correct, it is likely to mean trouble for Northern Ireland, as the Free State has declared that it would not surrender any territory, and certainly not the town of Newry. A very small section of Donegal is said to be awarded to Northern Ireland. One of the Northern Irish government ministers has already announced that if such an award is made, Northern Ireland will resist. The position of Great Britain will become most difficult in such a case, since public opinion would be most unlikely to consent to the award being used against Northern Ireland, even if the government were willing to do so. There has been some talk of a final meeting between the premiers of the two Irish governments to try to settle the question by agreement, but neither of them may be allowed to their own people to make concessions. It is, of course, possible that the anticipation of the award of Newry is a mistake. There is some belief that this problem of the boundary has been a matter of fact since settled long ago by the premiers, who have been unwilling to admit the settlement until the last possible moment because they know that neither section of Ireland will receive it with pleasure.

The indications are that the British labor extremists are gaining ground. The trial of strength is likely to take place at the trade union conference in Scarborough this month. The extremists are demanding that a labor army with general staff should be formed to take action on behalf of the labor party whenever occasion demands. This is a revival of the direct action which came into existence immediately after the close of the Great War and which on at least one occasion paralyzed the action of the British government.

Some of the labor M.P.s are denouncing A. J. Cook, the head of the extremists, as having lost his head and become a puppet. The extremists are also on the other hand in Australia, the whole shipping of the country is in a state of confusion. The result of the recent strikes of the seamen's unions, which appear quite a long time ago in Great Britain, is that they may make and pay no attention to the orders of the arbitration court. The strike of seamen has also taken place in South Africa.

Latest news is that the seamen's strike in Britain is extending and may affect the shipping of the Atlantic passenger lines.

An agreement has been reached provisionally between Great Britain and France for the payment of the French war debt to Great Britain by instalments of 12 and half million pounds sterling each year for the next 62 years. This is a much more generous settlement in Great Britain's part than she herself got from the United States. The new agreement is thought to be a success for the British States giving equally generous terms to France. Some serious fault is being found with the settlement by the proposed settlement but on the whole it appears to be recognized as perhaps the best that could be got.

Lord Plumer, one of the most successful of the British generals in the war, has entered Jerusalem as British high commissioner for Palestine. He succeeds Sir Herbert Samuel, who was suspected by the Arabs of the country of favoring the Jews, since he himself was a Jew. His feeling between the Jews and the Arabs is a matter of some interest.

FOOTBALL

The English football season opened on Saturday last and we give the results in the first two divisions of the league and the Scottish League. The most startling result in all three divisions is the defeat of Burnley by Aston Villa by no less than 10 to 0. This must be almost a record in a first division match, and a truly lamentable opening of the season for Burnley. Possibly the new referee rule may be responsible. This makes only two men instead of three necessary between a player and the goal to keep him out.

NATURE NOTES
It seems that the game protection policy of the Canadian government and the continued increase of the cultivated area of Canada are each having their effect on the wild life. The draining of the land which results from cultivation, road making and other civilizing activities, has led to the disappearance of many of the sloughs, and that in turn has reduced the numbers of wild ducks in the country. It is unlikely that Western Canada will ever again have the huge numbers of ducks coming and going within its limits that it once had. Sportmen have no doubt played a part in reducing the numbers, but looking to the increase in the quantity of other game it seems that the decrease in the water areas is the main factor. Game generally is certainly on the increase, thanks to the game laws and their fairly efficient observance and enforcement. The antelope are practically gone from the southern prairies except for the herd fortunately secured and provided with a reserve on the analogy of

INDIAN ARCHAEOLOGIST IN RED DEER
Dr. W. J. Whitehouse, of the Victoria Memorial Museum, Ottawa, was a visitor to Red Deer last week. The doctor is interested in old Indian customs and antiquities and is making a trip through the prairie provinces collecting specimens of native ornaments, weapons and other handwork. He is particularly interested in the bow and arrow, and weapons and implements made and used by the old inhabitants of this country. He is endeavoring to locate some of the old Indian camp sites. Considerable work has been done in Eastern Canada during the last few years investigating old Indian village sites. Many interesting discoveries have been made relating to customs and history of ancient eastern tribes.
During the doctor's short stay here, a visit was paid to the old Indian burial ground in the Roman Catholic Church grounds in North Red Deer. A short time was also spent in Mr. Fred Kruse's gardens on Michener Hill. It was known that stone arrowheads had been found here and the doctor soon collected from amongst the well-kept rows of cabbages and other vegetables a number of stone chips and fragments dropped and discarded by some ancient hunter as he chipped out a spear point or arrowhead—evidence of human life and industry long before the white man came.
The doctor would be glad to hear of any interesting finds along these lines made in this district. Information could be sent to Mrs. H. W. Pams, secretary-treasurer of the Alberta Natural History Society, Red Deer. The doctor's next stopping place is Runnymede. It is reported that on a hillside near that place there is a large human figure cut into the boulders—the work of old Indian residents.

AN APPLE A DAY
Eat more fruit and keep your skin clear would perhaps be an apt slogan for Canadian fruit growers to adopt. In this connection possibly no fruit would better fill the bill than apples, of which a bulletin issued by the fruit branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, entitled "Canadian-Grown Apples," says: "From a dietetic standpoint the most important function of the apple is that of furnishing mineral salts and organic acids; but it has an important nutritive value as well, furnished by the carbohydrates present. As the fruit ripens starch changes to sugar. The apple has a medicinal value also, especially if eaten at the beginning of a meal or between meals." The bulletin further remarks that no household should be without a box or barrel of Canadian-grown apples and then proceeds to give a list of the varieties that should be used at different times of the year.
September—Duchess, Alexander, Maiden's Blush, Lawrence and similar varieties.
October, November, December—Gravenstein, Wealthy, Hubbardston, McIntosh, Red Pippin, Blenheim, Ribston and similar varieties.
January, February—Baldwin, King, Wagener, Greening, Sisk, Peewee, Ontario, Jonathan, Yellow Newton and similar varieties.

CORRESPONDENCE
Dear Sir: I told you when I wrote before it was no good your trying to get rid of party politics in the province. The Conservatives will be the new leader are just going the old way. But they have a chance of winning. The Liberal candidates are all the old warhorses. We know they are not any good anyhow. Look at what they did when they had the chance. If you ask me, there are hundreds of voters in this riding who will vote Conservative the next election who never voted that way before. If the Conservatives get a good candidate they can beat Mr. J. J. Gault easily, and they might beat Mr. G. W. Smith too. "The News" named Mr. Gault the lawyer as a good candidate for the federal parliament a little while ago. I want to suggest two or three names for the provincial house. I think that Mr. Graham's partner, Mr. G. W. Smith, M.P., is a good man. Mr. Smith served us faithfully and well. I don't hold with this class class business but what I say is that Mr. Smith is a farmer and a townsmen in one. He used to farm and now he lives in town, but I see him milking the other day so I reckon he still kind of hankers after farm life. So I say let his true man vote for the old candidate for the knows town and country and lets get clear of the class voting. My sons says we want a Russian uron and I guess he's right. Yours truly, A. F.

To Ford The Ocean In A Ford
What is it that goes over the sea, under the sea and never touches the sea?
Apropos of what has gone before and to complicate further the puzzle, another question is suggested: Is it possible to ford the ocean in a Ford?
The correct answer to the second query is: "Yes and no."
And now, "Let there be light!" The thing that goes over the sea, under the sea and never touches the sea, is—no, not an egg in a duck's stomach, but a Ford car in the hold of the S.S. "Melita."
So that, in a way, it is possible to ford the ocean in a Ford, and the principals concerned in the performance of this unusual feat are the family Fox, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. and small daughter, Miss Josephine, the family of the S.S. "Melita" is a Canadian Pacific liner plying between Antwerp, Southampton, Cherbourg and Montreal, and the Atlantic is, of course, where everyone expects it.
It seems that the Foxes, after motoring all over the British Isles, not once but several times, they covered 17,000 miles all told, and we too are all told that Great Britain and Ireland could be fitted into a small corner of one of our larger provinces, though we find it somewhat difficult to relay that information to a Britisher. Anyway, fish family conceived the happy idea of conquering other lands by the way of the sea, and keeping their triumphs within the Empire, chose the Dominion of Canada as an aid to victory.
Half way across the broad Atlantic the news of the impending landing was wirelessly to Canadian Pacific headquarters in Montreal. That company immediately got in touch with the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, of Ford, Ontario, and when the ship docked, special representatives of the car company were on hand to meet the invaders. A small army of Ford mechanics quickly assembled the car, the customs men were dealt with, a license procured and the 3,000 mile trek

OBJECT TO STATE- MENTS RE BAND

Red Deer, August 27, 1925

To the Editor of The News:

Dear Sir:—We were sorry to see in a report of the City Council meeting of Monday night, published in The News on Wednesday, that Mr. J. T.

Holmes had made some misleading statements regarding the attitude of some of the members of the Red Deer

Citizens' Band towards the new Elks' band organization. He stated, according to the report, that some members of the Citizens' Band were willing to enter the Elks' band only if admitted to the Order without the usual fees.

This matter was discussed between

Mr. Holmes and ourselves as to whether all band members would have to join the Order or not, but it was

Mr. Holmes thought it could be arranged that old bandmen would be taken in at a reduced entry fee. Personally, we do not see that it is necessary for players to belong to the Order, as other Elks bands have non-members of the Order in their line-ups. Apparently for old bandmen to belong to this or any other organization it would cost them something like $25 entry fee and $12 per dues to have the privilege of playing in the proposed Elks' band.

Mr. Holmes also stated that the members of the Citizens' Band were not willing to surrender the instruments. He was informed, when this subject was brought up, that the organization were responsible to three trustees for the 15th equipment, of which Commissioner Stephenson was a member and to whom he was referred.

Mr. Holmes also informed that we had been appointed at our meeting on Monday, August 17, to do all in our power to further the organization of an Elks' band in Red Deer. There are nine members of the old band organization who do not belong to the Elks'

Lodge, and who are in accord with the above views.

The Citizens' Band is not at the present time disbanded, and if it had received the support of those citizens who can play in the Citizens' Band they would have functioned regularly, but they were always too busy to help, so we had to do the best we could. The band started to plan for a band for the coming winter, by getting some new instruments, but we have now given up the idea so as not to put any obstacle in the way of the Elks' band.

DUSSELDORF'S RED SUNDAY

[NOTE: In the public press last week it was announced that the French troops had evacuated the city of Duesseldorf in the Ruhr, which they had held since January of 1923. The evacuation may make of interest to the following account of the events of Sunday, September 30, 1923. The editor of "The News" was in the Ruhr on that day, a few miles from Duesseldorf, and was in the city itself two days later. The account here given is derived from conversations with eye witnesses, British and French. The general story has been told in different periodicals and newspapers long ago, but it is believed that certain of the incidents have not previously been made public. Owing to the source from which they were derived, it has been inadvisable to publish them as long as the French were still in the city.]

When the French and Belgian armies occupied the Ruhr in January, Duesseldorf became a French headquarters and was extremely strongly held. French troops were to be seen everywhere. The headquarters staff were located in two large buildings standing close to the streets named the Regatta Wall and the Ludendorff Strasse, which form really one long street. Close by and parallel runs the Elbe-Allee, or King Street, these being among the main streets of the city, which is one of about 350,000 people. On the Ludendorff Strasse stand two statues, one of the Emperor William I, who was proclaimed emperor in Germany at Duesseldorf in 1871 in the hour of Germany's great victory over France. The other statue is of Moltke, the great German general, who commanded the German armies in the victorious wars of 1864 against Denmark, 1866 against Austria, and 1870-71 against France. This statue is a particularly fine one, and is a pedestal of marble, one on each side, the names of Moltke's greatest victories, Koenigsgrat, Metz, Sedan, Paris.

If these statues had possessed life, they could have both seen and heard constantly the French troops and the British soldiers who were in the city. A short way up the street, they could have seen a French soldier, and heard the triumphant notes of their trumpets, which always accompanied the French changing each day, and heard the triumphant notes of their trumpets, which always accompanied the French changing each day, and heard the triumphant notes of their trumpets, which always accompanied the French changing each day.

In addition to the French there were a few British soldiers in the city near to the city and a small British army mission, consisting of a few officers and men, who were in the city to watch what went on and keep the British army of occupation at Cologne and the British army of occupation at Cologne and the British army of occupation at Cologne.

The French ruled the city with a stern hand, and the lot of the Germans was not an enjoyable one. When the general staff of the French army took place in protest against the French occupation, and as a result business, food and coal were scarce, the German money became daily more valueless and conditions generally grew more and more desperate. Duesseldorf suffered with the rest of the Ruhr. The French regulations did not encourage German money to be used after dark, and there was little but military traffic in the streets at night, though the lights were on in the street for the full extent. It was on a night of August, hot and still, that a certain British soldier was sitting at the window above him, and the French regulations did not encourage German money to be used after dark, and there was little but military traffic in the streets at night.

"COLLECTED"

During an examination a schoolboy was asked to write a short story introducing the words "rain and thunder", and the following was submitted: "One day an absent-minded professor was crossing a bridge over a river, and his consternation he discovered traffic bearing down on him from two under the bridge. He was very much alarmed, but he stood quite calm. The traffic passed and he was collected."

her's window and the mob trampled on him as it rushed past. His cries were horrible to hear. The resistance did not last long, but the pursuit and punishment did not cease with the resistance. The French police were everywhere determined to teach the Separatists a tremendous lesson, and they did it with characteristic German thoroughness and brutality. They hunted them like rabbits and shot them wherever they could find them. They used their bayonets or the clubbed rifles. Close to the Ludendorff Strasse there are for a long time still, perhaps a few small ornamental ponds of water, and to these the mob fled, and amongst them the police followed. They were then caught some other turn in the day's tragedy. The French had anticipated trouble and had kept in reserve troops in barracks. They now sent them out into the streets and cavalry and armored cars with machine guns came rushing to the scene of the fighting. The French were recognized as friends by the Separatists as they proved more or less by the fact that cheers from the crowd greeted their appearance, and the extraordinary phenomenon of German cheering French troops against German troops in a great German city was witnessed. The "green" police was no resistance to the French. They ceased their pursuit of the mob and the firing died away in the streets.

Yet the most horrible part of the day was the light of the street. The French were not content with stopping the pursuit. Under the eyes of the crowd they drove the mob back, and the mob was driven back to the old man with a humble "Pardon." His fellows followed his example and as the old man came into the street, they presented arms to him. He acknowledged the salute gravely and slowly walked along the direction of the French headquarters. From that time onwards the British in his mind was the scene of the day. He used to come limping down the street, stand in front of the statue and talk to it, looking at it about what was going on in the Ruhr and Germany generally, and what misery prevailed there, and he would tell that there was mad as clear. How dangerous his madness was to the British mind.

September passed in deepening wretchedness in Duesseldorf and the length of the month, a Sunday, warm, sunny and beautiful. Duesseldorf was a scene of confusion and anxiety and was a scene of confusion and anxiety and was a scene of confusion and anxiety.

Early in the day the Separatists began to arrive in the city by special train from all over the Rhineland, and their appearance was not impressive. For the most part they were ordinary men, some of them with at least reputable sections of the people. Some of them, many of them, carried revolvers. Others were armed with bludgeons made of lead piping with a rubber handle, and others carried heavy sticks. They came from the station to the Ludendorff Strasse, and there the meeting began. The French soldiers were got up on small stools or tables or on any place of vantage including the pedestals of the statues, and they began to address the crowds. "What they said was simply treason to the average German, for they were all voting the secession of the Rhineland from the German Republic. They were speaking to a crowd composed largely of men of the Rhineland, and many of the ordinary people of the city came to the meeting, and they were therefore received with cheers and approval.

A certain number of police were present from all over the Rhineland, and they were called, being the local unnamed city police whom the French had allowed to continue on duty in the city. They were very few and evidently did not feel that they could interfere with the meeting. They stood on the street at the windows and on the balconies of the houses spectators were standing and watching, amongst them being some British officers and men. At the window of his billet opposite the Moltke statue the British soldier referred to was looking on. It is not clear how the trouble began, but it seems that portions of the crowd began to adopt a hostile attitude towards the "blue" police, to cast ugly looks and ugly words at them and to jeer them. In any event, a shot was suddenly fired and a policeman dropped to the ground. At once there was confusion in the crowd, some were near the place trying to get away, as if they feared more shots, while others pushed towards the place to see just what had happened. There came more revolver shots, and the turmoil became all up and down the street. There were pushing, shouting and straggling between the blue police and the crowd. The mob tried to hold the revolvers and bludgeons and a regular attack on the "blue" police was made. These men, few and unarmed, were soon fighting for their lives against overwhelming numbers.

Then came intervention of another kind. From the far end of the street came the sound of orders, and the crowd began to make desperate attempts to escape by every possible avenue. The people on the balconies and in the windows saw the sun glinting on steel helmets, and down the street in regular formation came a force of "green" police, who were simply the old German army police of the empire. They were in full war kit with fixed bayonets on their rifles, and they fired volleys as they strode into the street. The mob made little resistance. They had a sort of republican guard armed with revolvers who fired a few shots at the oncoming soldiers, but the result of the fight was the usual one, when a disciplined body of troops meets a disordered mob.

The crowd broke and fled in every direction, imploring another down in their anxiety to escape. There were some women and children amongst the crowd, and these suffered both from the rifle fire and the panic in such narrow streets. The effect of the volley was particularly severe. One Separatist fell wounded at the base of the Moltke statue just under the watching British

TERENCE HORNE

RECITAL NEXT FRIDAY

No doubt there will be a full house to hear Mr. Terence Horne, tenor, of the United Church, Red Deer, on Friday, September 4. Mr. Horne will be assisted by Mrs. T. R. McLean, violinist. Mr. Horne is no stranger to Red Deer music lovers, as he sang the solo in the Red Deer Choral Society's presentation of "The Messiah" three years ago. Since that time Mr. Horne has been a frequent visitor in New York under the best teachers, and critics state he has a voice of exceptional range and power. Mr. Horne's recital at Calgary are being sold for $2.00, only 50 cents extra for the concert. It is hoped that everyone might have an opportunity of hearing Mr. Horne. Miss Alberta Boyd will be the accompanist.

A NOVEL TARIFF SUGGESTION

"Farm and Home," a Vancouver farm paper, in a recent issue made a suggestion which seems an unfamiliar one, at least in recent time. This is that Canada should be divided into four economic areas corresponding to the natural geographical divisions—the maritime provinces, Ontario and Quebec, the prairie provinces, and British Columbia. Each of these areas it is suggested should have the right to frame its own tariff policy. The theory behind the suggestion is that the economic interests of these different areas are so conflicting that they cannot possibly have a common tariff policy, and that the present arrangement is inevitably the result of friction and estrangement.

It is quite true that there is a conflict of interest between different parts of Canada so far as the tariff is concerned. That only too obvious in all the discussions that take place about it. The suggested remedy, however, seems at least likely to be worse than the existing disease. At present, while the conflict of interest exists, the fact that the dominion is one whole in tariff matters leads to at any rate some occasional compromises in practice, some recognition of the other section's viewpoint. If separate tariffs were set up for four different areas in Canada, each area would almost inevitably shape its tariff policy in its own immediate interest and with little or no thought for the other areas. The result would be something like a tariff war which could hardly fail to injure all the areas by the obstacles and restraints which it would impose on the freedom of trade. Most economists agree that free trade is the ideal to be aimed at, while admitting that protection may be necessary at certain times, for certain areas, under certain conditions. The economic success of the old Austrian empire was largely the result of free trade within a large territory producing many different products. It is notorious what difficulties and economic depression have resulted from the breaking up of that empire into a number of separate states with hostile tariffs. It has been the constant endeavor of the more enlightened statesmen of the new nations to arrive at tariff agreements with one another to permit free trade as far as possible. The same principle was illustrated in the case of Scotland and England before the union of the parliaments in 1707. The removal of the trade restrictions between the countries brought increased prosperity, particularly to Scotland. The Irish Free State has introduced a tariff policy against Great Britain and Northern Ireland with results that are the very reverse of satisfactory. Moreover, tariff barriers never well tend towards political barriers too. It is possible that the prairie provinces, with their own tariff policy, might find themselves strongly drawn, not to say compelled, to arrive at some form of agreement or even union with the United States, which would no doubt be glad enough to make it—at a price fixed by the United States leaders. One wonders if this consideration was in the minds of those who suggested this new policy for Canada.

The suggestion has been received with entire disapproval in some quarters of Western Canada at least, and it is difficult not to believe that the policy laid down by it would be a mistake of a grave kind. The discussion of the difficult tariff problem, like other political discussions, suffer from the habitual failure of those taking part in them to recognize that there are two sides to every question and a conflict of interest involved in every political problem, which are best solved on a basis of give and take, and of compromise. This suggestion recognizes the conflict of interest but apparently believes that compromise is neither possible nor desirable. Approached in that spirit the tariff question is unlikely to be solved to the benefit of Canada as a whole.

WAR DEBTS AND PEACE

It has been announced that, subject to the approval of the respective governments, something like an agreement has been reached between Mr. Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, and M. Caillaux, French minister of finance, with respect to the payment of the French war debt to Great Britain. That debt is a very large one. It amounts to over six hundred million pounds sterling or approximately three thousand million dollars. The suggested agreement provides for payment by yearly instalments spread over 62 years with interest at the rate of only two per cent per annum. From the British standpoint it is a poor enough settlement. Britain is getting nothing for the war which is paying the United States so far as the interest rate is concerned, and the yearly instalments are also much less. Nevertheless, it seems that as far as Britain is concerned, the agreement will be approved. The principle that half a loaf is better than no bread. France is recognized to be perilously near a complete financial breakdown in which her franc might go the way of the old German mark, and in France a financial panic might have even more serious results than the political disturbance than did the financial breakdown in the case of the more disciplined and docile Germans. France is not yet as heavily encumbered as Great Britain. If her governments had had the courage to impose taxation and reduce expenditure in the way Great Britain has done, she could not now be in such a precarious position. She can if she chooses pay her way, but there have been many indications from quite high quarters that she would rather pay her way without enthusiasm. The broad and easy path of denunciation of foreign debts and of ground of fancied "moral considerations" has proved considerable attractions to her. The suggestion made with Great Britain is said to have the condition attached to it that no more favorable terms of settlement shall be given the United States by France. It has been given under this agreement to Britain. Why should the United States be willing to be equally generous remains to be seen. She can afford generosity much more than Britain can. For the sake of the present settlement of these persistent war questions and the resulting economic life of the world, it is to be hoped that she will be generous.

TO SCHOOL THE MERRY URMEN COMES

Yesterday saw the re-opening of the schools for the year, and hundreds of merry urmen trooped back to the halls of instruction. School is a change from generation to generation, but it is probable that some features of school life remain, roughly speaking, constant. It is highly unlikely that many boys or girls prefer school time to the holidays. Very few grown men and women prefer work when they have got to do to spending their time as they please. Therefore the re-opening of the schools is not regarded with unalloyed pleasure by the aforementioned Merry urmen. There are some compensations. School sports are good things in the eyes of those who take part in them, though it is rather to be feared that in Western Canada or sports are not as well organized or as much played as they should be. Then there is also a certain amount of unofficial and casual sport to lighten the tedium of work. It is hardly possible for 30 or 40 boys and girls to be together in a room for hours at a time without some incident taking place which can furnish a good laugh, and a laugh enjoyed with a large number of acquaintances is an excellent result. The first day or two of the new term are not so bad either. There are friends to meet and compare holiday notes with. There may be new teachers to inspect and to weigh in the delicate balance of which classes of boys and girls are the skilled manipulators, and which so quickly discovers whether anything is wanting in respect to either knowledge or discipline in the teacher who is being so inspected. There may be some new boys and girls at the school, and these can afford a certain amount of interest, though it is believed that the bad old custom of treating "the new boy" as fair game for all manner of impish tricks has largely disappeared. It is at the universities where increasing age should have taught both better manners and more sense, that the freshmen seem to come in for something like organized trials. On the whole, the modern school has much more of a pleasant and healthy atmosphere about it for the pupils than the schools of a by-gone generation. When one reads the old stories of brutal and often entirely needless floggings and punishments meted out right and left to the hapless boys at the mercy of masters often cruel almost to the verge of madness, one wonders that such treatment did not have worse results than it seems to have had. If the pendulum nowadays has swung too far in the opposite direction and many boys, and girls too, for that matter, might be all the better for considerably sterner discipline and punishment, still a leaning to the side of mercy is on the whole a fault which has a good side to it.

How the teaching of the resumption of school is not known by experience to any but themselves. It is, however, shrewdly suspected that their joy in the unsealing of the founts of knowledge is little greater than that of their pupils. However, the teachers who are filled with a divine enthusiasm for the imparting of the great gift of learning to their dear children may be quite large, but the members of the noble army are not so numerous, as those who regard their work as most other laborers in this earthly vineyard do—something that has to be done and done as well as possible but not to be regarded as a sort of obsession like golf or the moving pictures or singing in the village choir. However, the schools are open. Long may they flourish.

Ken Simpson was here over the weekend from Sylvan Lake, and expects to commence school here again about the first of October.

By the time this is in print, we expect that our old friend, Sandy Houston, will have joined the ranks of the beneficiaries, his marriage to Miss Annie Pye taking place on Wednesday morning.

At the same time comes an announcement that France and the other allied powers have invited Germany to a conference at which an effort will be made to settle all outstanding questions and embody the agreement reached in one comprehensive treaty aiming at the assurance of continuing peace in Europe. It is a wise and hopeful proposal. It is earnestly to be desired that it will have completely successful results, but it will not be an easy thing to carry out. The proposal. For the allies it is comparatively easy to say that the present territorial arrangements shall be regarded as permanently settled, and that no one shall attack anyone else. They are victorious. They are in possession of great empires. Their frontiers are more or less what they have desired for long past. What of Germany? Here is a great and growing nation which for nearly 50 years lived in the light of a great imperial dream of world power. She has now neither colonies nor power. Her navy is a wholly second-class thing. Her army and air force are heavily fettered and restricted. Her colonies have been forcibly contracted not only to restore Alsace-Lorraine to France and Schleswig to Denmark, but even more seriously to restore Poland to life and to the possibility of growing power. Can Germany make a genuine whole-hearted and sincere treaty to accept such a situation permanently? If not, at that expense is she to receive compensation? Neither France, Denmark nor Poland will bear of surrendering the newly-restored territory. Colonies possessions can hardly be given to Germany except at the expense of Britain and France, or by giving Germany a free hand to acquire them forcibly from some weak country like Portugal, which is wholly unlikely to do so. South America is a tempting field of expansion for Germany but the United States with its Monroe doctrine bars the way. If this proposed conference is to result in success there must be one to be a statesmanlike vision and generosity on more sides than one. It will be highly interesting to see the outcome.

Edmonton market holding fairly steady on a range from $12.75 to $13.00 for thick smooths; bacon 10 per cent premium.

GRAIN
Reports which are reaching the world markets now are all bearish and nearly every country seems to have a little more wheat than was expected with the exception of the United States. This is due to the fact that the western Canada crop is being harvested under fairly satisfactory conditions and has a tendency to lower prices. Wet weather has delayed cutting and threshing in Alberta but conditions seem more settled now.

BUTTER—BUTTERFA
Butter—Alberta and Manitoba cream prices are now on a basis of 36c for specials and other grades also advanced. Saskatchewan is on a basis of 36c in the north and 34c in the southern part of the province; receipts are considerably reduced. Creameries—Butter—Prices unchanged and market firm though stocks have to be cleared through export terminals. In lots, Alberta, points, up to 37. Dairy Butter—Very little good dairy make getting past the country stage and consumption being large contributors to scarcity at central markets; prices firm on good quality and not a run of cheap butter. Market active and demand keeping up for Alberta make at unchanged prices.

EGGS—POULTRY
EGGS—Receipts very light and prices unchanged and firm at 32c for extra. Stored eggs now coming out and prices do not seem to be running as high as they were. Poultry—There would be very high and importations have been made to meet possible shortages. B.C. pullets looked on to supply demand for new birds. Poultry—Prices unchanged, with best chickens at 10c, turkeys, five, five pounds and over, 15c; demand moderate and storage stocks continue to be drawn on.

Calgary so far and most sales by the hundred at $1.25 to $1.75. Lickthorn of good Alberta crop in most districts. HAY Trade reports moderate demand and likelihood of fall crop supplies of good quality hay to draw from. Up-land at shipping points worth $10.50 to $11.00; timothy, Calgary, $10.00 to $10.50; alfalfa, $10.00 to $10.50. Lickthorn quoting timothy worth $10.00 to $20.00 to the grower.

WOOL
Weakness which has been developing resulted in a drop of 2c by Calgary buyers, now paying 20c to 24c; Boston market also lower.

HIDES
Receipts light, though quality is very good just now; prices unchanged.

FURS
One of the marked characteristics of the Winnipeg fur sale was the way coyotes were neglected, indicating lower prices during coming season. Manufacturers are now getting other furs for their skins at prices much under what they have had to pay for coyotes. On the whole the Winnipeg prices were fair enough.

ROMANCE IN AN UNLIKELY QUARTER

A CORNER OF RED DEER WHICH HOLDS HISTORY WITHIN ITS WALLS

The liquor vendor's store in Red Deer is regarded by different people with different eyes. To some it is the abode of comfort and convenience. To others it is the scene of the most sordid and squalid of life. To the latter it is the scene of the most sordid and squalid of life. To the latter it is the scene of the most sordid and squalid of life.

There is yet another aspect of the store which perhaps is suggested to comparatively few. It is the aspect of history, of romance and of travel. Here is a stout little bottle containing a liquor officially named "Drambuie" and which is known as "Gaelic" under a brand name, which means "the drink that satisfies" and "the drink that is good for you." ## EQUAL RIGHTS?

(Contributed)
For years the spotlight of publicity has been turned on women. They are being discussed in every phase: mentally, physically, morally and spiritually, until even so inextinguishable a subject is beginning to be a bit frayed.

And so, for a change, I want to talk about men. With your permission I will present the sex to you as having been forced to share their prerogatives, while retaining their handicaps. For handicaps the poor creatures do have. Take for instance in the matter of dress. Behold them on the hottest day in summer (and while climates not appreciably warmer than our own allow white linen and the most becoming attire of male attire, the pith helmet), sweating in woolen suits, topped off with a stiff collar! Many doubtless have cursed the absurd intricacies of collar and tie, of cuff-links and belts and braces, yet none has arisen clad in, say, a toga, to inspire this weaker brother to cast off the collar.

And shameless woman has not even respected man's possession of his garments, poor they are. For gentlemen she has, as it were, been nibbling at his wardrobe. Our grandmothers (with astonishing boldness) began the process when they annexed the bowler hat as a complement of their riding habits. (Though it's probably safe to say that man did not much resent the infringement in the case of that particularly ugly piece of headgear.)

Our mothers carried on with the adaptation of the shirt. They even overcame the stiff collar and their courage wasn't equal to the strain, for they shortly accumulated and returned to the decollete.

And now our own generation has jumped into trousers. Why they are content with the stiff discoloration of breeches and socks remains a mystery. They might so easily have made it, shorts and blazer, (but perhaps it's early speaking, and next season may see this change.)

Now, love of the grime in dress is not purely a feminine failing. Was the pride of a brand-new lieutenant in his white-poll and Sam Browne entirely patriotic? Many a humble Tommy got "C.B." for sporting more than the regulation number of badges, lanyards, etc., and yet they continually ran that risk, and I'll wager many a soldierly heart bitterly regretted the passing of the scarlet coat.

Give a fancy-dress ball and see in significant little John Smith strut and preen himself in the false-drawls of a Beau Brummel! Or watch the procession of a benefit society, where the collar, apron, fez and what-nots denote the fraternity?

I knew one chap—a handsome

WHO WAS THE JOKE ON?
A farmer had just built a big barn. One day as he was setting off for town he told his two boys to cut a small hole in one of the sides so that the cat could get in or out at will. The boys cut a hole just beside the big barn door, but when the farmer returned and saw it he was much displeased.

"Why can't I depend on you boys to do a single thing right?" he exclaimed angrily. "Don't you know that hole is in the wrong place?"
"Why?" asked the boys.
The farmer fairly scolded. Leaping from the buggy, he seized the barn door and swung it open, and, of course, it covered the aperture.
"Now, where is your cat hole?" he shouted. "How in the name of sense can the cat get into the barn when the door's open?"

Wrangell is Prospectors' Base

(Upper) A bird's-eye view of Wrangell, which was the base for the gold rush in '98, and from which prospectors this year are setting out on their expeditions. (Lower) Another view of Wrangell, on the south-east coast of Alaska. (Insert) A Canadian Pacific Coastal steamer which is on the Pacific coast route.

The coast of South-Eastern Alaska, is the centre of unusual interest this season, as the base from which prospectors are going in large numbers up the Stikine River into the Cassiar and Dease Lake districts of the Northern British Columbia. While the Gold Rush seemed not so universal as was at first predicted—generally foretold—it is in all likelihood a more healthy influx of practical men from whose explorations in these richly mineralized districts much good may be expected.

It was the Gold Rush of '98 that made of Wrangell the town that it is today, though it is one of the oldest settlements in Alaska. Its foundation dates back to 1830 when Baron Wrangell was Governor of Alaska, and a trading post was established there. This was that Wrangell via the Hudson's Bay Co. It was thought that Wrangell via a Stikine River would be the most direct route into the Yukon, but the building of the White Pass and Yukon R.R. destroyed such hopes. The industries of Wrangell are fishing and lumbering. Six canneries look to Wrangell as the source of their supplies, and the saw-mill furnishes a large part of the lumber used in the town. The journey up the Stikine River to the old Hudson's Bay town of Glenora, and to Telegraph Creek, which have two and a half hours' ride in the early days, thereby bearing out the high standard of all the reports made by this remarkably accurate and able geologist, Dr. D. M. Dawson.

FARMING NOTES

In the last issue of the Market Examiner it was reported that a train of 25 cars of feeder cattle had left Edmonton, the cattle being destined for Great Britain. A large eastern firm of dealers made the shipment, and it is reasonable to ask whether our farmers cannot do what the dealers do.

Cutting has been going on busily during the past week all over the district. The unsettled weather and the threats of frost have made all farmers exceedingly anxious to get their cutting done with the least possible delay. The bulk of the wheat and barley in this district has been cut but it will take something like a week of fine weather to get the greater part of the later crops cut. On the whole the bad weather does not appear to have resulted in any serious loss to the crops in this district, but from further west come reports of some loss in the Prairie Provinces district laid flat by the heavy snow which fell there ten days ago.

So far as this district is concerned farmers are needed to be getting all the help they need. Wages average $4.00 a day.

The C. A. Co-operative Society shipped one car of cattle to Montreal last week, two of hogs and three of cattle to Calgary.

There is no demand for half-fat cattle on the market at present. They are best kept at home, but there is a good demand for the best beef. Stocker cattle are bad to sell and good to buy at the present time.

SPRING WHEAT DATES

Returns received at Ottawa show that the sowing of spring wheat in the provinces named was generally a little earlier this year than in 1924. Alberta excepted. In Quebec April 11 as against April 15; in Ontario, March 28 against April 12; in Manitoba March 30 against April 5; Saskatchewan, April 1 against April 10; in Alberta April 6 against April 11, and British Columbia, April 1. In some districts in Alberta surface water delayed sowing, and in some was slow owing to the cold nights, the average being about 13 days. The earliest dates of appearance above ground this year were: Quebec, April 24; Ontario, April 14; Manitoba, April 10; Saskatchewan, April 15; Alberta, April 12; British Columbia, April 7.

CROP REPORT

The following is the Bank of Montreal latest crop report for provinces of Canada other than Alberta and Saskatchewan:

Manitoba District—Rain has interfered with harvesting but some points report cutting almost finished. Yields and grades will vary greatly in different localities owing to damage from rust.

Province of Quebec—The hay crop has proved to be much larger than usual but lower quality is reported owing to excessive rain. Barley and oats are being harvested and a heavy yield of both grain and straw is assured. Corn has benefited by warm weather but will not measure up to average. The potato prospects are good but not reported in low sections. Tobacco is fast ripening. Cutting has commenced and the quality is reported as excellent. In the northern districts hail and rain have caused some damage.

Province of Ontario—Farmers are busy with threshing and fall ploughing. Fall wheat, barley and oats are yielding well above the average. Weather conditions ideal for wheat, which has made splendid growth. Root crops are good. Winter apples and pears are reported exceptionally good. Pastures and fall wheat lands require rain.

Maritime Provinces—New Brunswick: Weather conditions somewhat improved but having not yet completed. Potato prospects good. Barley and oats are being harvested and a heavy yield of both grain and straw is assured. Corn has benefited by warm weather but will not measure up to average. The potato prospects are good but not reported in low sections. Tobacco is fast ripening. Cutting has commenced and the quality is reported as excellent. In the northern districts hail and rain have caused some damage.

Province of British Columbia—Threshing general. Wheat and oats above average. In Nicola Valley. Roots, potatoes and other vegetables will not be up to average owing to long drought. Tomatoes good. Hops good average. Okanagan apple estimate increased to 60 per cent of average. All fruit rising and coloring well and of good quality generally. Pears 15 percent of average crop; plums and prunes 30 per cent.

ENGAGEMENT COLUMN

The engagement is announced of Miss Catherine McCall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McCall, to Peter Ralph Weber. The wedding is fixed for October 1. Miss McCall will be one more of the popular staff in Red Deer who have been married recently, and no doubt she will not be the last by any means.

BIG FIRE AT INNISFAIR

Last Friday a serious fire occurred at Innisfair. It broke out at 3 o'clock in the morning, when a late wayfarer in the street noticed it and gave the alarm. The local fire brigade turned out and soon had water on the fire but they were unable to put it out. The fire spread along the main street of the block as far as McArthur's store, which, however, was saved. In addition to the hotel, six other buildings were burned. Fortunately, there were no guests in the hotel at the time. A. G. McDonald was in charge of it in the temporary absence of Mr. Peterson, the proprietor, and he and all the staff escaped, though all their personal property in the building was lost. It is not known what accident caused the fire and in view of the completeness of the destruction it is unlikely that the cause can be found. The loss is only partially covered by insurance. While the fire was raging a fire for help was sent to Red Deer but before there could be any answer, the fire was not under control.

THE LADIES' COLUMN

Where to shop and why—By Cecile

—Fall is, alas! almost upon us. But for us of the female persuasion the season is the season of the year.

Let's not hurry over it. With discretion the pleasure can be spread out over a whole delicious month or more.

Among the many arguments in favor of shopping at home this one is to me the most important. Your merchant knows his town, knows what is too expensive for good taste and will not unduly push a too transient favorite which will date itself out before you get a chance to wear it.

Take for instance the little frocks I saw at Lord's this week. That pale salmon moire (a color I could just eat) with its beautiful simplicity of line, would be appropriate in Red Deer, while being worthy of any evening occasion elsewhere or any of the afternoon frocks—particularly those trimmed with original embroidery and, of course, the new scarfies would be most useful and effective.

The hats I noticed particularly were the velours. They are always so good, though the two-toned velvets are nice for a change. As long as the bobbed head remains, I suppose the cloche will predominate.

The shoes are short-ramped, one strapped mostly, with the Spanish Louis heel, alike for street and evening wear.

At Gaetz-Ewart's, also, there is a bewildering array of dresses. One georgette-creation braided in chenille took my eye. They are several particularly nice black frocks (my own favorite is black) both for street and evening wear.

And coats! Coats with cosy collars of fur, Hudson seal, racoon, possum and marten, lovely warm garments, and by Northway! We all know the good appearance and wear of the Northway garment. I was pleased to find the price just within my reach (a most unusual occurrence with me).

Then there are lovely French and English fashions for us to make up at home. A striped flannel dress is both comfortable and smart. I always like to have at least one.

And I was able to get that one kind of furniture polish that leaves no city finish, "Suprema" it is, and it's the only stuff!

My last extravagance was a radio, though it was so reasonable it could hardly be considered an extravagance. It's a dandy, solid little chap, roomy and very good-looking.

School books are there in endless quantities. I expect we shall all be buying them in the next few weeks.

A special sale of records caused me to look longingly at the Victrolas, which are reduced 25 to 50 per cent just now. Let's all have music this winter! The special prices will put it within our reach.

"A compact" is a real necessity, isn't it? I got mine at Porter's. It's a Jergens' (their staff is so safe and sane!) I saw lots of pretty ones there, some with hand-painted covers, and Oh! they have the dearest little perfume novelties. So nice for little gifts or prizes and for oneself. I must have my perfume and toilet water. (Surely a "workman is worthy of his hire.")

I looked, too, at a new line of pipes. However, I haven't attempted to select the Christmas pipe myself. I must send hubby in to see them; they looked most business-like!

My room must have a new rug, those I always get at Bullock and Callender's. Theirs really do wash. I know, because I've washed mine of them. I mean the all-wool British made kind.

Champlain Memorial Marks Advent of White Race

April 24, 1615, was a great day in the lives of the townsfolk of the little seaport of Honfleur in Northern France, for on that day, Sieur Samuel de Champlain, whose earlier voyages and discoveries in the New World had stirred the imagination of the French Court and of the merchants of the Norman and Breton seaports, sailed in the little ship, the St. Etienne, with a party of four Recollet brothers to Christianize the Indians. After a stormy voyage the little ship sailed up the St. Lawrence to that natural citadel, now the city of Quebec. Later Champlain went on to Montreal, where he found a large band of Indians assembled to meet him, reminding him of his promise to assist them in their wars. Realizing that this would lead to exploration and eventually to colonization, he set off to Quebec to make arrangements the Indians sending out their scouts. Before he returned from Quebec, the Indians growing impatient set out with Father Le Caron and twelve Frenchmen into what is now the Province of Ontario. Champlain, with two Frenchmen and ten Indians started up the Ottawa to the Mattawa, and joined with the Hurons in a war expedition against the fierce Iroquois, by means of which Champlain, who was at enthusiastic an explorer as a soldier, discovered Lake Ontario. Returning from the wars, Champlain spent Christmas, 1615, with his friend, Chief Baront at Cahaguet, near where now stands the town of Orillia on Lake Simcoe. The gallant gentleman returned to Montreal in June, 1616, where he found his friends, the Recollets, had given up hope of seeing him again. Champlain's work as an explorer was now done, but his voyages into Ontario opened up the path to the west to the missionary and the trader.

It is a far cry from the little ship, St. Etienne, which set sail that day so long ago from France, up the St. Lawrence to Quebec, to the giant Canadian Pacific steamship, "Montreal," which one hundred and ten years later sailed from Cherbourg by the same route to the Canadian Gibraltar. On board the "Montreal" was Vernon March, the famous English sculptor who designed and executed the monument recently erected at Orillia, to the memory of the gallant soldier, missionary and explorer, Samuel de Champlain, near the site of Cahaguet, from which little settlement, Champlain started out with his Indian friends on the disastrous expedition against the Iroquois and where he returned with his discouraged allies.

The bronzes for the monument are colossal in size, the figure of Champlain himself being twelve feet high, of astounding action and vigor. In addition to this main figure are two groups, one, "Christianity" representing a Recollet father holding aloft the Crucifix to the savages (No. 1). The other is "Commerce" and shows the voyageur with a similar pair of Indians (No. 2). The total weight of the bronzes is more than nine tons. It is mounted on a pedestal of Benet stone, 30 feet square and 18 feet high, giving the monument a total height of 30 feet (No. 2).

Mr. Vernon March (No. 4), the sculptor, is an interesting figure. He is one of a family of seven brothers and one sister, all of whom are artists and sculptors. At their studio and workshop, in Farnborough, Kent, which formerly was an old post house, they do their own casting as well as designing. Mr. Vernon March's work, particularly that for war memorials, has won the highest recognition in all parts of the Empire and the memorial at Orillia in both conception and execution is one of the finest examples of his art. Mr. Sydney March, a younger brother, crossed on the "Montreal," and will assist his brother in the erection of the bronzes.

The late Lord Strathcona was one of the original promoters of the monument and made the initial contribution to the fund, while the Canadian Pacific Railway also contributed to the erection of the monument.
